Design story

The “Rocky” design is inspired from Mobius band. Its lines flow and circulate indefinitely. The initial idea of its design is to have a fluid, easy-to-slide and ergonomic chair that helps employees work happily and collaboratively.

Be functional and unique in subtle ways

Remove the inherent meeting chair, replace the traditional training chair and ensure that everyone has their own small table during the meeting. Agile and lightweight product design aims to let users forget the sense of urgency during training or brain storming process and get relaxed, so that they can display what they're good at and express what they truly want to say.

“Change your sitting posture to make you feel delighted, relaxed and broaden your mind”

*Combined with Nobius:
Clever collision of same design elements.

*Combined with whiteboard:
It can be placed in the extra space and plays the role of communication, partition and used for writing in case of temporary brain storming

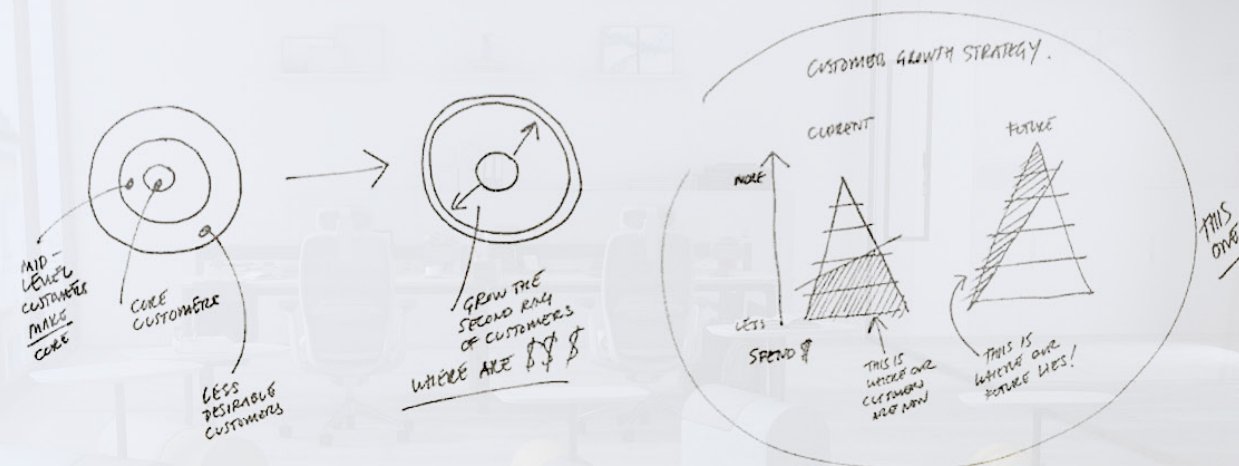

2-4People Discussion

Note: “Riding type” sitting posture does almost no harm to your body, and can greatly reduce interference with human metabolism. It is consistent with the main ergonomics goal, which is to minimize the risk of suffering from diseases.

Your First Wooden Horse Chair As An Adult

Rocky allows users to have more sitting postures. You can select high-back and low-back, ride on it or lean against it. The original intention lies in "playing", so you can play and talk at the same time. As you need to sit in the office for a long time, you need some new sitting postures.
